NAZIS REINFORCE STALINGRAD ARMY

GERMANS SEIZE AMERICANS IN NORTH FRANCE

300 Held As Potential Hostages. Tension Increases Between U. S. and Vichy.

By The Associated Press

BERN, SWITZERLAND, Sept. 28—The Germans have seized some 300 Americans in occupied France as potential hostages, diplomatic dispatches here learned today, a move which added to the crisis in Pierre Laval's government at Vichy.

News of the seizures came from private sources in Paris. American diplomatic sources were without official word but it caused no surprise, since Americans in the occupied zone are under internment by the Nazis already.

Those held were Americans who for one reason or another remained in occupied France pending negotiations for their repatriation. It was assumed that if repatriations were permitted the Germans would ask for the return of an equal number of Germans in the United States.

The roundup and other incident, especially the United States' indictment of the British occupation of Madagascar, have served to create the most critical situation thus far in American-French relations, French observers of the Vichy scene said.

U. S. Asks Explanation

The United States embassy in Vichy has asked Laval's government to explain why citizens of the United States had been barred from air travel in unoccupied France along with other allied nationals, it was reported.

Announcement of the restrictions on air travel, which threatened to increase friction already existing between Washington and Vichy, was made by the French Air Lines as Laval conferred with German officials in Paris after ousting the ardent collaborationist, Jacques Benoist-Mechin, as secretary of state in his foreign ministry.

The ouster of Benoist-Mechin followed a week of rumors of plots against the Laval regime and was accompanied by a statement from Laval in which he declared:

"I shall under no circumstances allow the authority of the government to be attacked. This is more necessary today than ever. The government stands firm and there is no reason why it should not do so in the future. I am firmly resolved to carry out to the end my mission."

Laval did not elaborate further on the reasons for Benoist Mechin's dismissal.

Some observers, however, believed his action had upset a plan to have Benoist-Mechin take over from Laval at the head of a group of "young collaborationists" pressing for a pro-German program at a pace which Laval—still mindful of American prestige and power—thought too rapid.

These quarters who could not be named, recalled that only the day before the ouster the Frankfurter Zeitung had published a laudatory article reviewing Benoist-Mechin's career and praising his work.

Whatever the facts, it was assumed certain that Laval's week-end visit to Paris involved a discussion of the ouster and an explanation of his plans for sending more skilled workers to Germany—the big card in his dealings with the Nazis.

931 RENT CONTROL BLANKS DISTRIBUTED

Saturday Total Includes 884 for Housing Units.

Nine hundred and thirty-one rent control registration blanks were distributed Friday and Saturday as Marion city and county landlords began conforming to laws controlling the county since it was brought under federal rent control on Sept. 1.

Of the 931 there were 884 for housing units and 47 for hotels and rooming houses, John K. Bartram, area rent control director, reported.

A few registration blanks have been returned to the rent control office at 301 West Center street. Landlords were urged again today by Mr. Bartram to have their returns filed as early as possible.

Deadline for filing has been set as Oct. 15. Landlords who fail to comply with the regulations, made mandatory by law, are liable to a maximum penalty of a year's imprisonment and a $5,000 fine.

Registration blanks may be had at the courtroom on the third floor of the courthouse, the public library on South Main street and the municipal court office in the city building at West Center and Orchard streets.

Marion County's Scrap Campaign "Gets Going"

Community's Participation in Nation's All-Out Drive for Vital Metal Starts Today in Rural Area; City Collection To Get Under Way Soon.

Marion county today began an intensive three-week scrap metal campaign.

At rural schools throughout the country, scrap piles will start taking form.

They are not expected to grow very rapidly this week, for all of the first week is being used by most schools to have students canvass the entire school district, talk with every family and make arrangements for the actual gathering of metal next week. The canvassers will pick up some small pieces as they visit homes, but the scrap piles in school yards aren't expected to grow much until next week.

By the time the three-week drive is ended, county committee officials hope to have the bulk of Marion county's scrap iron in the schoolyards.

Reasons for Drive

As the drive got under way, salvage officials reviewed briefly some of the reasons they are asking every family in Marion county to make a thorough search of their houses, basements, barns and farmyards in search of old metal.

Factories are running short of scrap metal. There have been some interruptions in war production for lack of scrap, and in many cases factories have only a few days' supply. War factories can not operate without it.

It's important to get the scrap metal in before the snow flies, because the job is made doubly difficult, especially in farm areas, in winter.

With national estimates showing 80 per cent of the nation's scrap is outside of cities, officials are looking to the country for the heaviest tonnage in the three-week drive, but the city will likewise be canvassed thoroughly.

It's a Patriotic Duty

Throughout the county school system today, superintendents and teachers were placing the scrap drive job before their students as a patriotic duty. They pointed out that the schools will get substantial funds from sale of the scrap, but that the job is primarily a war project.

The city schools will swing into action later, possibly not until next week, because the area they will cover is smaller.

Clyde C. Caldwell, co-chairman of the county salvage committee, today was making arrangements for regular reports on the progress of the county drive.

Saturday, George Alber, co-chairman with Mr. Caldwell, made tour of the county courthouse and planned to confer with the county commissioners for permission to empty the attic and store rooms of useless pieces of metal. Mr. Alber made his inspection of the building while a group of workers dismantled a large safe donated by the commissioners.

Marion county farm homes today received copies of a letter issued jointly by County Schools Supt. D. T. Mills and Arthur Smith, county farm agent, calling on every Marion county family for their help in the scrap drive.

SCRAP DRIVE IS NATIONWIDE

Millions Join in Greatest Salvage Hunt in U. S. History.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 28—Men, women and children by the millions began today the greatest concentrated hunt in American history—a nationwide search for metal scrap in homes, factories and farms—by states, cities, towns and counties.

For the next three weeks more than 1,600 newspapers in most states will lead the intensive drive to find junked metal to feed the hungry steel mills turning out weapons against the axis.

Everything that is made or worn-out, obsolete or unessential metal is needed.

This is the appeal recently issued by Donald Nelson:

"As chairman of the war production board, I call upon every citizen of the United States to make this campaign a success by gathering and turning in all the scrap metal that can possibly be spared.

"Let towering victory stock piles in every community in the nation stand as symbols of America's defiance to the axis."

In some states, the drive has already been under way, but in most the 21 days beginning today will be the intensive period. In a few, the drive starts a week later.

States will compete against states, towns against towns.

The salvage campaign has been going on for months and will continue till the war's end under government direction but because it has been sadly lagging Nelson asked the newspapers to arouse their communities to a full realization of the desperate scrap needs of the mills whose steel production is 5 million tons under top capacity.

The WPB, to emphasize the national need of the drive for scrap, will award plaques and pennants to states and counties piling up the greatest junk piles for the steel furnaces.

The three states collecting the most scrap will get plaques from Nelson while each county producing 100 pounds or more per capita will receive a salvage victory pennant.

Action Set Tonight on City Park Metal

Action to dispose of the city park metal relics to the scrap drive probably will be taken at a semi-monthly meeting of city council tonight at 7:30.

Mayor Snare said this morning he understood legislation to dispose of the guns and a torpedo was to be brought before council tonight.

3 TROOP SHIPS SUNK, NAZIS SAY

Berlin Reports Battle with Convoy Bound from U. S. to England.

By The Associated Press

BERLIN (FROM BERLIN BROADCASTS), Sept. 28—The high command said today that German submarines had sunk three transport vessels and a destroyer in an attack in the north Pacific on a troop and supply convoy enroute from the United States to England.

"There was no confirmation of the attack from other sources. German claims of large scale victories over allied convoys in the past have proved repeatedly to be greatly exaggerated."

"In the north Atlantic," a special communique said, "German submarines destroyed the greater part of an American troop transport destined for England.

"They attacked a fast enemy convoy consisting of only a few large passenger steamers and which was strongly protected and carrying troops, munitions and war material.

"In the course of difficult attacks and heavy pursuit fighting lasting several days, they sank one two-funnelled steamer of the 19,000-ton Viceroy of India type, which capsized after three torpedo hits; one two-funnelled steamer of the 17,000-ton Reina Del Pacifico type which blew up following two torpedo hits; one transport of the 11,000-ton Derbyshire type, and one destroyer of the escort.

"Two other transport ships were damaged by torpedo hits.

"In other sections of the Atlantic, from the African to the American coast, submarines sank 11 more ships totaling 57,000 tons, so that the total losses of enemy shipping in the last four days amount to 14 ships totaling 104,000 tons."

LONDON, Sept. 28 — United States navy headquarters here declined to comment today on the German high command claim that German submarines had "destroyed the greater part of an American troop transport" convoy in the North Atlantic.

Box Given To Metal Drive by Canton Friends and Former Associates.

The heavy maroon safe bearing President Warren G. Harding's name in gold letters, and used by him while he was publishing The Marion Star, joined coat hangers, old hot water tanks and other household scrap Saturday in Canton.

Weighing 1,500 pounds, it was toppled into the salvage depot on the public square by old friends and newspaper associates of the late president.

As it crashed into the homely but equally important scrap in the salvage bin, Louis H. Brush, president of Brush-Moore Newspapers, Inc., owners of the safe since The Star was purchased from the president, said simply:

"This is the way President Harding would have had it if he were here."

Mr. Brush, an old political associate and fellow Ohio newspaper publisher, helped shove the safe from a moving van into the scrap pile.

National Officer Present

With him were Walter M. Dear, president of the American Newspaper Publishers and publisher of the Jersey City Journal, who was in Canton to attend a meeting of the committee in charge of the Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers' association; Roy D. Moore, former Marion man who is vice president and general manager of Brush-Moore Newspapers, Inc., and H. R. Schaffner, business manager of Brush-Moore newspapers, and a former Marion Star associate of President Harding.

Interested onlookers included Revell Yarger, county chairman, and G. F. Duryee, Canton city chairman of local salvage committees.

The publisher's association headed by Mr. Dear last Monday launched a nationwide effort to speed the salvage drive.

The association is acting at the specific request of Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the war production board, and more than 1,600 dailies throughout the country are participating. Among them are the Brush-Moore newspapers, including The Marion Star and The Canton Repository.

JAPS ATTACKED ON WIDE FRONT

U. S. Planes Carry Out Raids from China to New Guinea Over Week-End

By The Associated Press

The deadly sting and pulverizing smash of United States fighting and bombing planes characterized the war with Japan over the week-end both in China and on Australia's island front.

Bombers and fighters of the Stilwell command in China blasted Japanese bases and lines of communication west of the Salween river in southwestern Yunnan province without loss of a single plane.

Direct hits were scored on buildings at Mengahih and Tengyueh and five separate groups of Japanese barracks were combed by the guns of the Americans on a Sunday sweep of the Burma road.

This burst of activity came on the third day of a renewal of air action in the Chinese theater after a month's lull.

On Friday the Americans raided the Japanese air base at Hanoi, French Indo-China, shooting down three of Japan's new twin-engined, two-man fighters, I-46's. On Saturday they [illegible] 10 trucks, a staff car and three tanks on the road between Lungling and Chefang, in Yunnan province.

SHOCK TROOPS REACH BATTLE AREA BY PLANE

Germans Say Several More Sections of City Have Been Overrun.

By The Associated Press

Stalingrad still stands.

After five weeks of battering siege, the Germans were reported today forced to bring up shock troops by air transport in a mighty effort to overrun Stalingrad before a Russian counter-offensive sawing at their thin northern flank turns the city into another Leningrad.

The Germans said several more districts of Stalingrad had fallen, and that Russian diversionary attacks both south and north of the city had failed.

German propaganda, restrained about Stalingrad, was keyed chiefly today to claims that three transport vessels and a destroyer were sunk in U-boat attacks on a troop and supply convoy enroute from the United States to England.

There was no confirmation, and such German claims in the past have been shown up repeatedly as exaggerations. But it was Germany's first claim to success against a troop-bearing convoy.

The high command claimed destruction of one 19,000-ton vessel, one of 17,000 tons and a third of 11,000 tons. Two others were damaged by torpedoes, the communique said.

Stalingrad Dominates News

Stalingrad, battling with her back to the Volga, still dominated the war news.

Still fighting from rooftops, windows, street corners and barricades of tumbled rubble, the Russians reported they were holding their own. A Pravda correspondent pictured Stalingrad thus:

"The whole city is in convulsion from the incessant explosions of bombs and shells."

The defense of the city, becoming more than ever a pivot of allied strategy offered heroic parallels to the defense of Leningrad where for more than a year German siege forces have been held off, and actually rolled back from time to time in various places, by a northern Red army.

The parallel, of course, is not complete. The snow and cold of 1941-42 helped save Leningrad; the temperate weather of Stalingrad's latitude will not be such an ally. But as against the German's shorter supply lines to the Leningrad positions, the route to Stalingrad on the Volga extends more than 600 miles deeper into Russia and is exposed to Russian attacks.

Northwest of the city, the Russians blunted the German drive and launched an offensive of their own in an effort to slow the more direct Nazi attack on the city. It was reported. In one sector, a large Soviet unit killed 2,000 Germans in two days, the mid-day communique said.

The fighting for the city is "growing ever fiercer and bloodier," a correspondent for Pravda reported.

Line Zig-Zags

The fierce fighting of the past 24 hours, with the Germans lunging into the city from several different points, has resulted in a zig-zag front with the Germans slightly advanced in some sectors and the Russians established in new positions to the west in others, one dispatch said.

The Russians were reported to have taken two more streets from the Germans at one point. The mid-day communique said two enemy companies had been wiped out in one neighborhood.

The Pravda reporter mentioned the whine of Soviet fighter planes over the city, indicating that air support was at hand for the besieged city.

But still the German bombers came and the Pravda writer said the city shook with the explosions of their bombs.

Despite their great losses, the dispatch said, the German effort to take Stalingrad is not weakening. The Germans were reported

Dewey Still Leads Two Foes in N. Y.

The New York State governorship race, important because of its implications for 1944, finds Thomas E. Dewey, the Republican, holding the lead over his two opponents, John J. Bennett, the Farley-backed Democrat, and Dean Alfange, American Labor Party candidate, according to the latest of a series of Gallup polls on the election.

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 28—James A. Farley's reputation as an election forecaster will be put to an acid test this November.

The New York State Democratic chairman is backing John J. Bennett, Democrat, to beat Thomas E. Dewey, Republican, in the New York governorship race, widely considered the first round in the 1944 presidential fight.

In the second of a series of Institute surveys that are being made between now and election day on the New York race, Dewey continues to hold the lead in popularity.

If he is elected it will put the Republicans in control of the biggest state in the union for the first time in twenty years.

Farley is confident that Bennett, not Dewey, will be elected. The Farley-Bennett forces are confronted with one main problem. The Democratic vote is split between Bennett and the candidate put up by the New Deal American Labor party, Dean Alfange.

The popular line-up of the three candidates at the present time is shown as follows in the latest Institute survey. Comparison with a previous poll is also shown. The figures do not constitute a final forecast; additional surveys will be made right up to election day.

	First Report	Second Report
Dewey	51%	53%
Bennett	36	37
Alfange	10	10

When the feud between Farley and President Roosevelt over the nomination of Bennett broke out into the open, the big question in the minds of political strategists was whether the 1940 Roosevelt voters in the state would stick with the Democratic party and vote for Bennett, whom the President opposed for nomination.

The indication from today's survey is that the majority are for Bennett, but it is a very slim majority.

Out of every 100 persons who voted for Roosevelt in 1940, the poll finds that 52 are planning to vote for Bennett, 15 for Alfange, while the remaining 33—and this will come as a surprise to many political observers—say they are planning to vote for Dewey.

It is clear that part of Dewey's strength lies in the fact that he is acceptable to such a sizable proportion of Democrats in this particular race against Bennett.

Were Dewey to show equal vote-getting ability among Democrats throughout the whole country, the fact would have important implications for 1944.

However, Dewey also faces the problem of shifting party allegiance in the Empire state. About one out of every five persons (22 per cent) who voted for Wendell Willkie in 1940 say they are not going to vote for Dewey, but will cast their ballots for the Democrat, Bennett, instead.

Thus the November voting in New York is likely to show a substantial amount of party shifting. About one-fifth of the Republicans say they are switching parties to vote for Bennett, while one-third of the Democrats say they are switching to vote for Dewey.

At this writing, it appears that the switches are resulting in a net gain for the Republican candidate.

The actual extent of the party shifting is shown below:

	1940 Roosevelt Voters	1940 Willkie Voters
Dewey	33%	77%
Bennett	52	22
Alfange	15	1

When Dewey ran for governor in 1938 he was beaten by a narrow margin. Today's survey finds him running better than he did last time in New York City, the strong-hold of the Democrats in state politics. The city accounts for about half the votes cast in the state, and in 1938 Dewey polled 35 per cent of the city vote. Today the survey finds him with 42 per cent in the city.

Upstate, the stronghold of the Republicans, he is running about the same as in 1938.

	N. Y. City	Upstate
Dewey	42%	65%
Bennett	41	33
Alfange	17	2

However, a favorable factor on the Democratic side in this political race is that about one person in every seven (14 per cent) is as yet undecided as to which way he will vote.

The greatest proportion of these undecided were Democratic voters in 1940, and in that fact lies an advantage for the Farley-Bennett team.

If most of the undecided make up their minds before election day to stick with the party they favored in 1940—a logical possibility—Bennett will obviously be the gainer.

DEMAND EASING FOR STRIP PLATES

Some Mills Able To Turn to Other Needs.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Sept. 28—The magazine Steel noted today "while heavy pressure continues for sheared plates, October allocations point to easing demand for strip plate and some mills will be able to devote more tonnage to sheets than for some time.

This shift, the trade publication continued, "indicates that pressing requirements are being met and stocks built up to a safe working margin." However, "delivery promises on sheets are becoming further deferred and many producers refuse to make firm promises. Buying is brisk, except for government requirements and the tight situation is due in part to reduced allocations of semi-finished steel. In some cases sheet mills are operating considerably below capacity for this reason."

National ingot production held last week at 98 per cent of estimated capacity for the fifth straight time. By districts, Pittsburgh climbed one point to 96 per cent Cleveland ½ to 93½, Cincinnati 9 to 92 and Detroit 6 to 95, while Wheeling fell 4 points to 80½ per cent and Youngstown was unchanged at 95.

Rent Questions Answered

Following is one of a series of questions and answers on rent control regulations affecting hotels and rooming houses, released by John K. Bertram, area rent director. It follows a landlord-tenant series and was compiled to give residents of the Marion county rent control area the complete picture of rent control in this countywide area.

• • •

Q. Are there any grounds on which a landlord can petition the area rent director for increase in the maximum rent?

A. Yes, there are a number of grounds on which the landlord may make such a petition.

• • •

Q. What are those grounds?

A. When there has been a substantial change in the room by a major capital improvement, as distinguished from ordinary repair, replacement and maintenance.

• • •

Q. What would be an example of this?

A. The landlord might convert a large closet into a bathroom.

• • •

Q. What if the landlord put some new furniture in a room, or increased the services?

A. He may petition on the grounds that "there has been a substantial increase in the services, furniture, furnishings, or equipment provided with the room since the 30-day period.... determining it a maximum rent."

• • •

Q. What if a landlord during the 30-day determining period was renting one of his rooms to his brother or his son, and charged him only $2 a week when other rooms in the house were bringing $7 a week? Can he charge only $2 for that particular room?

A. The landlord may petition on the grounds that the maximum rent was materially affected by the blood, personal or special relationship and was therefore substantially lower than the rent generally prevailing for such rooms in the defense-rental area.

• • •

Q. Suppose the landlord entered into a long-term lease, which was in force on the maximum rent date and had been in force for more than one year, calling for a rent substantially lower than the rent for comparable rooms in the area?

A. The landlord may petition for an increase if the rent he was getting under the lease was substantially lower than the rent generally prevailing for such rooms on the maximum rent date. However, even though an increase is granted, the landlord cannot raise the rent until the lease has been terminated.

• • •

Q. What about a room which rents for $5 a week during the winter and $25 a week during the summer, and the 30-day period is the one or the January or March maximum rent dates?

A. In all cases of seasonal rents, the landlord can petition for adjustments, and the area rent director may provide different rents for different periods of the calendar year.

• • •

Q. Can roomers or tenants ask for adjustments in rents, too?

A. Yes. The regulation provides that the area rent director at any time, on his own initiative, or on application of the tenant, may order a decrease in the maximum rent on certain grounds.

• • •

Q. What if a person is paying more rent for his room than comparable rooms in the area were bringing on the maximum rent date? Can he get his rent lowered.

A. On application by the tenant, the area rent director may order a decrease in the rent, bringing it into line with rents generally charged for comparable rooms in the area on the maximum rent date.

• • •

Q. What about a room which has been allowed to become run down much more than ordinary wear and tear since the maximum rent was set?

A. Again on application, the area rent director may order a decrease in the rent.

• • •

Q. If the period for setting the maximum rent falls in the summer, and a roomer pays $25 a week for his room, does he have to keep on paying that rent when summer is over—when the room usually rents for $5 during the rest of the year?

A. No, here again the area rent director may decrease the rent and set different rents for different periods of the calendar year.

Pam Remembers Her Ordeal in Woods Year Ago Today

Still Pamela Hollingworth's pal and bodyguard is Shag, the dog that was with her when she became lost in the mountains a year ago.

• • •

Wide World Features

DUNSTABLE, Mass. — Little six-year-old Pamela Hollingworth remembers only too well how she wandered away from a family picnic just a year ago today and then managed to survive through eight footless days and nights of bitter cold in the New Hampshire wilderness of Mount Cnocorua—but she doesn't want to talk about it.

"Of course I remember," says Pam, but that's all.

Nor is she likely to forget, for she still is receiving gifts and letters from those who admired the way she conquered fear during those eight painful days. It was her dry-eyed calm, so a doctor said that helped to keep her alive through an experience few adults could have survived.

No Visible Effets

Today she is a healthy, 46-pound youngster, with blue eyes and quick dimples, who bears few physical scars of the near-miracle she wrought on the slopes of Mount Cnocorua. But, inside at least, she has been tempered, for she is very definite and determined for a young lady of her age.

"I don't know what Pam will grow up to be," says her mother, "but whatever it is, Pam will be something quite definite. I think she'll be whatever she makes up her mind to be."

It was during the afternoon of September 28, a year ago, that the then five-year-old Pam left her mother, father and brother at a picnic scene and went for a walk with her dog "Shag." Day after day passed, until experienced woodsmen said no child could still be alive.

One man refused to listen to the woodsmen—Pamela's father. His faith kept hundreds of forest rangers and volunteers pounding across the wooded uplands while he rode a sound truck over stumbling roads and called:

"Pam, don't be afraid. Don't be afraid, Pam."

The five-year-old Pamela was found on the banks of Hob's Brook and, near sleep in her father's arms, she told him:

"I knew you'd come, Daddy."

Her dog "Shag" had come back without her.

Shag Has Company

But "Shag" doesn't leave her now even though he has to share her with "Corky," an Irish setter that was one of the gifts which tumbled in on the girl from all over the country.

Her mother says, 'There are still people who don't believe she was lost."

But Pam believes it.

"She will answer questions about it," Mrs. Hollingworth says, 'but I think for her it's practically forgotten."

Pamela's subjects this year, besides "Shag' and "Corky," have been her bicycle, her badminton game and her vegetable garden.

DEMOCRATS DRAFT CAMPAIGN PLATFORM

McSweeney Personally Writes Labor Plank.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 28 — Ohio's Democrats, armed with a new platform emphasizing a pro-labor plank, settled down to their campaign today while the Republicans set their platform convention here Wednesday.

The Democrats' principles, adopted at a convention Saturday, criticized what they described as "false economy" claims by Republican Gov. Bricker's administration and promised a legislative program to "reduce the real estate taxes of home and farm owners."

The labor plank was drafted personally by John McSweeney of Wooster, the party's candidate for governor. It said, "we condemn the reactionary, backward-looking and unfriendly attitude on all labor questions of our present state administration."

McSweeney advocated legislation to prohibit injunctions before a court hearing during labor disputes, more effective collective bargaining, and increased weekly benefit insurance benefits.

Of taxes, the Democrats asserted:

"Condemning the false economy claims by which cities, counties, townships, villages and school districts have been deprived of their share in certain tax funds by the present administration, we pledge to the people of Ohio a comprehensive legislative program enabling just and equitable distribution of the sales tax revenue. x x x x.

The Republican convention, billed as a one-day "strictly business affair, will be keynoted by Bricker instead of the customary visiting statesman. The meeting will be called to order at 1 p. m. in the Neil house by Ed D. Schorr state central committee chairman.

A Promise for Tomorrow

BY ELEANOR ATTERBURY

CHAPTER TEN
The Green Car Again

JULIE'S full day allowed her no scrap of time until she shut the door behind the last patient. Then she realized her own almost unbearable fatigue and, with sudden dismay, that she had had no word from Dawn.

She drew the telephone across her desk, dialed a number swiftly. Miss Kelland had not returned as yet. There had been no message from her.

Julie replaced the receiver, tried to whip her wits into line. Alarm was already ringing a bell. Dawn surely wouldn't deliberately worry her father—needlessly. Something was wrong, Julie felt sure. But what—and how to go about finding her.

Pete was too busy at the yards, probably. He needn't be disturbed unless the danger proved real. And yet, Pete wouldn't thank her for spreading the news of Dawn's strange disappearance. Just an escapade would look foolish. Real menace wouldn't be relieved by publicity.

She picked up the phone again, dialed Bart's office.

"Hello, my sweet," his voice came across the wire pleasantly warm with surprise. "Would it be just sheer optimism to hope that you're calling to suggest we have dinner together?"

Julie laughed softly. That was even easier than she'd hoped. "Not optimism at all. Just good guess work."

"I'll be right over. At the office?"

"Yes, but I can meet you—"

"Don't move. I want to get there before you change your mind. 'Bye sweet."

Still smiling, Julie pulled off her white linen coat, powdered her nose carefully. If she just weren't too tired to think straight, she should be able to solve this little mystery without anyone's knowing it had been a mystery!

She was just pulling a scrap of veil over her eyes, wishing her blouse weren't so tailored when Bart arrived.

He burst into her office, his familiar grin a tonic in itself. "Hello, sweet." Then as he caught her hand. "'Mlgosh. You been seeing ghosts?"

She rubbed her cheek with her free hand. "No, not yet. Just a little weary. No sleep last night. Not much food today."

He looked at her sternly. "No sleep, no food, pretty soon no Julie! Don't you practice what you preach?"

"Sometimes. Too busy, today."

One arm around her waist, he hurried her out of the office down the hall. "Food, my lovely Calories—millions of them. We'll start with one of Archie's broiled steaks."

Drive

Food did help, Julie thought a little later and smiled at Bart across the narrow, lamp-lit table at the little roadhouse. Archie was justly famous for his broiled steaks and the mushrooms he served in a sauce that was his own well-guarded secret.

"That was wonderful. I'm a new woman," she said and drained the glass of burgundy.

"And now I'm taking you home, Doctor, and this time I'm giving the orders. To bed and—"

"Not yet. It's not even dark. Besides it's too lovely an evening after the rain to go to bed yet. Let's drive up the hills a way." She said it carelessly but her heart thumped a little before he finally answered.

"Okay. Just a short ride. If you'll promise me to sleep all day tomorrow."

"Let's worry about tomorrow when it comes," she said lightly and led the way out to the car.

And that was more easily said than done, she thought, as they drove along the tree-shaded street.

"Cold?" — instantly concerned. Bart pulled a robe over her knees.

"No, not really. Let's drive out the Kelland ranch road," she suggested as they came to a fork in the road.

"The Kelland road?" He looked at her, surprised. "You really want a drive, don't you? I doubt if the road's open yet. It's usually a chuck hole mill about July."

"Oh, maybe they've fixed it already. And the wild roses should be lovely now. Let's try it anyway," she persisted, trying desperately not to sound too determined.

"Okay," and swung the car off the paved highway onto the oiled, rutted dirt road.

"Not as bad as I thought. It would be," Bart murmured a few minutes later. "Looks as if they'd been driving in here quite recently."

Speeder In The Dusk

"Where does this road go, anyway?" she asked. "Just to the Kelland place?"

"That's all. Nothing back up in here except good fishing and hunting. Old Kelland bought up all this land years ago. Matter of fact, he put this road in after they built the original cabin up there. They used to pack in.

"I suppose it seemed a long way from Santa Felice thirty years ago. Dawn makes it out here in an hour now."

Bart grinned. "Dawn drives seventy miles an hour, too. Or she did—when tires could be had!"

Julie's little smile froze on her lips. "Someone's coming around those curves ahead at nothing like snail's pace right now."

"Have I time to make it to the next turn-out?"

Julie glanced at the bank falling away at her right, at the narrow, one-way road twisting ahead. "Hurry."

Bart stepped down on the accelerator, the car lunged ahead. A long, chromium-trimmed phaeton flashed into sight for a moment rounding one of the tortuous hairpin curves ahead.

"Damned fool. Driving like that on a one-way road."

Julie held her breath until he'd maneuvered the car into the turn-out. A moment later the car streaked past. A moment too brief to make sure that there had been two people in the car, a man and a woman. Too brief to be certain in the gathering dusk that the phaeton was dark green.

"Whew. That was too close for comfort. Who the devil do you suppose that was?"

Bart hasn't noticed, obviously. He'd been too busy getting out of the way. And she might very well have imagined it was the same green car they'd seen entering the Kelland driveway only a few days before. But if it had been Dawn, if she had come up early to open the summer cabin — way hadn't she left word?

"Whoever that was wanted to get away pretty damned fast, huh?" Bart persisted. "You know something?"

"Not much. What?"

"I've a hunch somebody's been poaching on Kelland's place, saw us coming, and took a powder so we wouldn't catch them."

Julie's breath came faster. "What makes you think that?"

"Well, you know you can hear a car coming up this valley for miles. Remember—Dawn always knew when her guests were arriving 15 minutes before they got there. Matter of fact, if you know where to look, you can ... road clear down at the ... the mountain right from ... porch."

Julie nodded. "It could ... Someone who knew ... Kelland had been up ... probably wouldn't open ... until much later than ... year."

Bart slipped the gear ... the car back into the ... say we go have a look? C...

"Of course." — ... was sure they were on ... of discovering something ... hoped it was nothing ... ister than poachers!

Waste That Made Want

ANOTHER war-inspired idea that may survive into peace is the drive to minimize waste. The United States has been the most wasteful country on earth. Its people thought they had so much of everything they'd never run short. They threw away and lost through neglect and fuzzy management more than some other countries converted to use.

It hasn't taken long for war to reveal the consequences of waste. Besides its appalling waste of time in the face of danger, the United States has wasted material resources urgently needed. It has wasted the productive capacity of its manpower by neglecting the skills in demand now to make weapons. It has wasted too much of its ability to grow food, forgetting there might come a day when it would need a maximum, instead of a minimum, supply.

Emphasis is on saving now—saving everything. It has become unpatriotic to waste anything that is usable. To bury and burn food, old rubber and anything needed to sustain life would be a crime against society today, yet it was only yesterday that these things were done as a matter of course; many persons even thought they represented unusual sagacity. It is made obvious that waste never can be patriotic because it diminishes by that much the national strength. Perhaps the United States at last has learned that its resources are not inexhaustable. Its waste in the past has contributed enormously to its present want.

Psychologists Are Experts Too

DISCUSSIONS of the second front now legd quickly to the conclusion that it is something for the experts to decide, which is no conclusion at all, but an evasion and a popular confession of confusion about the whole matter.

Perhaps other than military experts should be taking a hand in the decision. Psychologists are experts, too, and there is room for them in the discussion. A psychological problem has been created.

Specifically, the psychologists might point out a peril implicit in the effort to make the public aware of the difficulties of establishing a second front. This job has been done so well that no one underestimates the troubles and dangers inherent in the project any more.

But it also may be done so well, in view of the outcome at Dieppe, that the troubles and dangers appear insurmountable. It might even be concluded that the things which have made a second front impractical so far, in the judgment of the experts, have made it impractical for all time to come, which surely is not what the experts want to accomplish.

Military Aviation Accidents

THE mortality toll in military plane crashes mounts steadily as more new planes and aviators take the air. The worst is probably yet to come, despite a stunning total already in the record of 20 army fliers killed in one day.

So far there has been no official statement to allay public alarm. Perhaps there is nothing to say. It was known in advance that the training of a large air force would be attended by many casualties.

Undoubtedly everything possible is being done to minimize risk, but there is no way to eliminate the inherent danger of high-speed flight in military planes, danger far greater than that encountered in ordinary planes.

Germany, during the period when the luftwaffe was being developed, lost so many planes and crews that Americans, hearing about it, were sure something was wrong with German aviation. They have reason to believe now that military aviation accidents in a period of preparation are unavoidable. The safest place for new crews being trained to operate new planes is on the ground—the one place they must never be when it's time to fight. Instead of being an indication of neglect, the high rate of military aviation accidents probably is the most trustworthy indication of preparedness.

Wait for the Wooden Nickels

THE secretary of the treasury has confessed cheerfully that his experts are fussing with glass and plastics for possible use in small coins to relieve copper, nickel and other newly precious metals. Mr. Morgenthau must be well aware of the irony of this predicament.

Silver and gold, traditional monetary metals due to their value, obstainability, divisibility, portability and durability, are actually more abundant at the moment than such utilitarian substances as copper. They are using silver, insofar as it is permitted to reach the market, for airplane construction. Gold is used chiefly, of course, as filler for an enormous vault at Fort Knox, Ky. But neither is as indispensable right now as aluminum, nickel and steel.

Glass pennies would partake of the nature of paper money. That is, the public would regard them as tokens having no intrinsic value, which has come to be the prevailing attitude about money anyway. Wait for the wooden nickels. It won't be long now.

YET WHERE'S THE RUBBER?

This alleged editor has now on his desk enough literature to bed a mule on the subject of synthetic rubber.—Pennsylvania Farmer.

News Behind the News

Taylor Visit to Vatican Not Regarded Primarily As Move Toward Peace.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28 — If you put two and two together about Myron Taylor's visit to the Vatican, you are apt to get more than is justified.

Strangest thing about the little noticed event is that this emissary of Mr Roosevelt is the only man of the United Nations who has gone through enemy lines in this war. Past precedents against such a concession by Mussolini (who is held up by Hitler) are almost unanimous.

The official explanation here is that the Vatican desired to see Mr. Taylor. Insistence that he be granted safe conduct through Italy came upon Mussolini from that source.

It seems the British, French and other anti-axis nations have had men already lodged on the neutral ground of Vatican city, since the start of the war There was no necessity for the extreme measure of arranging safe passage for them

The natural implication of this event is that a new peace plan is in the making. But the detached tone assumed by Washington officials also makes it quite plain that peace is not seriously considered even as a remote possibility here.

Semi-official Washington says the Vatican conferences concern the handling of Jewish refugees, now being persecuted by Laval, and any peace phase of the conference must therefore be vague and inconsequential, although the Vatican will get from Mr. Taylor an understanding of our war aims.

Peace Feelers

Other small feathers from that dove, however, can be seen floating down in European air.

A Nazi general broadcast this week (their tongues all work on strings from Hitler's headquarters) that the Russian soldier was an excellent fighting man and implied victory over the Russian spirit could not be expected (up to then, the Nazis had been calling their enemies savages and promised extinction).

Also, a Moscow newspaper turned on British and American statesmen this week for the first time since our aid started. While Mr. Wilkie was cooling his heels a few days waiting to see Stalin, this newspaper (the Red Press, unlike ours, also works on official strings) accused conservatives in the British and American governments of desiring to see the Communists fall, and said this is why the second front had been delayed.

These sudden, if still feeble, wisps of news are interesting, but appear to be more in the nature of diplomatic sound-outs than sincere peace floaters.

No doubt exists Hitler and Mussolini want a peace based on our existing unfavorable military situation. Von Ribbentrop is supposed to be working on it.

But any separate peace by Moscow could only mean extinction of the Russian Communist state in the end (look at France). Moscow may be drawing the Nazis out on that subject, but cannot be planning suicide.

We are in the same boat as the Russians. You cannot make peace with an enemy who challenges your national civilization. Peace can come for us only through victory or defeat.

Labor Peace Outlook

Bill Green and Phil Murray have been fraternizing like two long lost cousins, but don't hold your breath until that peace arrives either.

The peculiar make-up of the peace committee is causing labor wiseмen to lay heavy odds that CIO and AFL will be apart for a long time to come. Not a single representative of a union in competition is on the committee.

The AFL committee is made up of Harry Bates, of the Bricklayers, Dan Tobin of the teamsters, and Bill Hutcheson, of the carpenters, all in the building trades, and all free of CIO competition since the effort of John Lewis' brother to invade that field.

On the CIO side are Philip Mur-

World's Richest Mine

MOTHER LODE—Inland Itabira will send its ore to the coast for shipment to the mills of America and Great Britain.

By RICHARD DYER
Wide World Features

ITABIRA, State of Minas Gerais, Brazil, Sept. 28—The streets are paved in iron, and the massive walls of the 200-year-old houses are heavy with the mineral.

The little valley cleaves sharply into surrounding jagged peaks of the world's richest iron ore, to which the United States and England have turned to meet their demand for history's greatest belligerent construction program.

Right now they are pouring $14,000,000 into Itabira and its railroad to the sea, and for every dollar they plan to rush out a ton of ore or more, at the rate of about two million tons a year.

Boom Town Days

But that won't even scratch the astronomical reserves of iron here, for the Itabira project controls an estimated 430 million tons of the thirteen billion tons of high grade iron ore—running as high as 79 per cent pure—in this state.

This sudden, intense activity comes as a shock to the sleepy little town, perched precariously in abrupt gullies of iron, its crooked, bumpy streets scaling difficult cliffs and appearing, for all the world, like a struggling boom town of 1849 California.

Men and materials are rushing in, the new railroad connection is being carved through the mountains, an airport is being surveyed old houses are being knocked down or rebuilt, new ones are springing up.

Mules and burros still are the best means of transportation, and at a premium.

American Started It

Within a year they will be slicing away at the top of one peak which rises 2,000 feet above Itabira, and laden ore trains will be rumbling on their way six hundred kilometers down the Vale do Rio Doce (Brazil's "Sweet River Valley") to the port of Vitoria and huge new ore loading docks, from where fleets of ore ships will plough to the United States and England

The project is a partial realization of the dream of Percival Farquhar, 78-year-old American of Myriad enterprises, one of the most active and colorful figures in the development of Latin American transportation and industry.

Farquhar long knew the immense wealth of iron ore in Itabira, and in 1919 first discussed his plan for development with the late President Epitacio Pessoa of Brazil.

He envisioned construction of a new railroad to the sea and erection of a huge steel plant, which would consume some of the ore and enable the ore steamers returning from abroad to come laden with coal for the plant.

The Brazilian president was encouraging, but demanded that Farquhar come to Brazil and assume personal direction of the enterprise.

20-Year Effort

Farquhar went, and spent more than two decades battling with varying governments, federal and state, in an effort to get the project started. He never succeeded, but so well had he laid his preliminary plans that all was in readiness when Brazil, the United States and England reached their recent agreement.

Under this the Itabira properties and the Vitoria and Minas Railroad were turned over to the Brazilian government-controlled Cia. Vale do Rio Doce, for an unstated compensation to Farquhar and associates, and a U. S. loan of $14,000,000 made available for development of the project, with payment to be made in ore to the U.S. at a specified price.

Work started immediately under the direction of Dr. Israel Pinheiro, former minister of agriculture of the state of Minas Gerais.

An extension of the old Vitoria and Minas Railroad, originally built up the valley of the Rio Doce in 1902, is being brought to the iron mine sites at Itabira, and the rest of the 600 kilometers of narrow gauge to Vitoria is being regraded and rebuilt to carry heavy ore trains.

Will Keep 800 Cars Busy

Some 800 new ore cars will be used for transport to Vitoria. About half of this equipment already has been ordered in the United States.

Here it is planned to employ about 5,000 men in surface mining operations, slicing off a top section of one of the peaks of iron ore and carrying it in aerial buckets down 2,000 feet to a big automatic loading station.

In Vitoria, capital of the state of Espirito Santo and located on a deep water Atlantic harbor, an automatic loading ore bin with a capacity of 1,200 tons an hour is nearing completion. This bin, which will load two vessels simultaneously, provides a storage capacity for 47,000 tons of ore.

Intense development of Itabira which is potentially one of the world's greatest sources of iron ore, gives rise to the question of how much of a "war measure" is the project.

In the opinion of Dr. Pinheiro, the development is in no sense a war measure, although work was hastened by war need.

"Small amounts of Itabira ore have been exported for years, and always found a market," he explains. "Intense development had been studied and considered feasible for twenty-five years.

"Once the high grade ore of Itabira is given access to the sea, it will always be assured of a market, even if peace should come tomorrow.

"Meanwhile the United States and England will be getting the world's purest iron ore for their war production."

"WORLD SERIOUS"

U. S. Takes Care of Its Fighting Men

By Jack Stinnett, Washington Correspondent

NEVER before in a war have United States fighting men been granted so many legal and economic protections. Their life is no downy couch of ease, but they can go off to the wars knowing that just about everything imaginable has been done to make them feel reasonably secure.

The service man's base pay now starts at $50 a month. With the exception of a few grades in the Australian army, the United States soldier is the best paid in the world, receiving more than four times as much as a British soldier, 12 times as much as a Russian and, in the case of privates, 160 times as much as a Japanese.

It hasn't been so widely publicized that non-commissioned officers and privates get a 20 percent (and commissioned officers a 10 per cent) bonus for service overseas; that he gets an automatic 5 per cent raise every three years; that if he is a paratrooper, there are also bonuses for flying soldiers and men in other hazardous branches; that the lowliest private is reckoned by the army to be earning the civilian equivalent of $1,700 a year.

That doesn't take into consideration either what total or partial dependents get. It doesn't consider that one per cent a mile (on round trip basis) that is deducted from his train fare while on furlough or the cash allowance he gets on his return for rations he didn't eat (12 to 56 cents a day).

THE soldiers' and sailors' relief act of 1940 covers a lot. It authorizes the courts to stay execution of judgment and stay (or even vacate) attachments and garnishments against men in the service. It protects against the lapse of certain life insurance policies; against forced payment while in the service of too burdensome income taxes owed at the time of induction.

It won't prevent eviction of a man's family for non-payment of rent, but it clears the way for staying the eviction. Under some circumstances, it protects the man in service against sale of his properties for non-payment of taxes.

By extending the statute of limitations on his debts by that length of time which he is in service, it relieves the creditors of being forced to take action on such debts while a man is in service.

Congress has provided that men in the service may take out insurance policies from $1,000 to $10,000, in multiples of $500. There is nothing compulsory about it. After a year they may be converted to 20-pay, 30-pay, or ordinary life policies.

It is doubtful if any nation has ever put an army of more than 4,000,000 men in training in 10 months of total war and held injustices to the family to such a minimum.

In the second place, congress, through the servicemen's dependents allowance act and other measures, has taken considerable precautions to see that the hardship cases are kept from actual want.

For purposes of the act, dependents are divided into Class A, a wife and child or children; Class B, parents, brothers sisters and grandchildren who are all or in part dependent upon the enlisted man. Every man in the service in the fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh grades (a new selectee is normally rated seventh grade) has to contribute $22 allotment from his monthly pay to Class A dependents. Whether he does so to Class B dependents is voluntary.

This Week in the Sky

THIS WEEK the morning sky is rich in planets. Venus rises a little more than an hour before the sun but can be observed only by those who have a good view of the eastern sky near the horizon. Jupiter rises more than five hours before the sun, and hence can be seen during the latter half of the night. Saturn is near the meridian at sunrise.

For those who are particularly interested in the planets their colors present a fascinating study. Everyone knows that Mars is red, and for a very definite reason: The oxidation of iron on its surface; in other words, the surface of Mars has rusted. Mercury looks white, but much less intensely so than its neighbor, Venus. The white clouds surrounding Venus make an excellent reflector for sunlight, and this accounts also for that planet's great brilliance.

Jupiter, the giant of the planet family, is described differently by various observers. Its colors are very beautiful and delicately shaded—brown, yellow, red and tan. Saturn is yellow. For those who observe the planets through telescopes, it is obvious that Uranus and Neptune are greenish in tint, and Pluto which is not visible with small instruments, is yellow.

Our Price Cards Make It Simple . . .

The Hughes plan of pricing a funeral is very simple. In every casket there is a card that tells the price of that complete funeral.

Each family we serve may choose the casket they prefer, and know just what the total cost will be. There are no unexpected items—nor is a family urged to spend more.

Many patrons have expressed appreciation of this simple and easy method of meeting the cost problem. It leaves the decision entirely in their hands.

CLINIC TAGS BRING IN $455

Sale Yields Largest Amount in History of Free Hospital Service.

The unprecedented sum of $455 25 was cleared by the Marion Parent-Teacher association council in the annual tag day sales Friday and Saturday, Mrs. H. E. Bracy, council president reported today.

Approximately 3 500 tags were sold in the drive for funds to help finance the free clinic and dispensary at City hospital.

In the years the tag day drives have been staged the highest amount cleared was $287.

"We feel that the people of the community are beginning to realize what the P.-T. A. is doing at the hospital, along with other groups, and to want to help in the work," Mrs. Bracy said, recounting several human interest stories told by the sales women.

One man paid $1 for his tag He wasn't particularly well dressed and when the saleswoman asked if he wanted change, he replied "No My family has been helped so much at the clinic that while I have the money I want to give it."

Two frail little girls accompanied by a gray-haired woman, approached one saleswoman, each holding out a dime for a tag.

In reply as to whether both wanted to give their dimes, the woman said, "Yes, both of them had all their dental work done at the clinic"

Virtually every newspaper carrier in the city gave something voluntarily and high school boys and girls, unsolicited by the saleswomen, stopped and made their contributions, Mrs. Bracy said.

High saleswomen for the two days, were announced as follows: Friday Mrs Harold Nussbaum $15 95, Mrs C. L Baldauf, $13 50, Mrs John Jacoby, $11.

Saturday, Mrs Hoover Brown, $15; Mrs Francis Layton, $8 58, Mrs Clyde Vance, $8 46.

On the general committee for the sale were Mrs. Damon Spicer, chairman Mrs E G. Leffler and Mrs Bracy

Bookworm With Muscles Is New Hero of Campus

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept 28—The war has produced a new college hero—a bookworm with muscles

If the nation's fifth largest university, Ohio State, is any criterion the ownership of a raccoon coat or its successor, the zoot suit, is no longer the "highest achievement of the collegian."

Joe College has hung a "for Saturday night only" sign on his fancier dress, says Harold K. Schellenger, director of the school's news bureau, and Betty Co-ed's dancing slippers aren't seeing the service they once did

"The college hero today is the good student who keeps himself in top physical condition so he'll be ready to take his place in the armed forces or otherwise aid the war effort after graduation," Schellenger reported

The wise-cracking drug store cowboy can't cope with the modern co-ed who studies engineering and handles a slide rule as deftly as a powder puff.

The girls, signing up more and more for courses once limited almost exclusively to men, admire the lad who knows the answers in the classroom whether he wears slacks and a sweater or a coat of the latest collegiate drape, Schellenger explained.

Students have become more serious minded and changed their after-school habits Mid-week dates have declined. Social affairs have been simplified and limited to Saturday night. More time is spent on books.

Co-eds have brought the biggest change to classrooms, jamming technical and business courses that will prepare them to take over men's jobs in industry while their boy-friends serve in the armed services.

After-class "gab" sessions have given way to muscle building recreations, skyrocketing intramural sport participation.

In the sports field and the classroom it's the boy who is there with the "old college try" that wears the hero's crown.

Absent from the peace committee are the aircraft workers, machinists, moulders, sheet metal workers and the smaller lines in which jurisdictional competition is most acute.

Anyway, the committee will not meet until Nov. 1, after the convention, and if it fails a formula for jurisdictional disputes the row will have to be ratified by the other unions in both major bodies before peace can be effected.

FIGHTING MEN

In the case of contributions to dependents in both classes the allotment may amount to $27.

To this the government adds an allowance of varying amounts determined by the degree of dependency so that monthly checks from the government varying from $27 for a partially dependent brother, sister or grandchild, to more than $100 in some instances, keep the soldier's family from extreme want

WIDOWS, children and parents of men killed in World war II or in extra-hazardous service before we entered the war, may apply for and receive pensions ranging from $20 to $137

Dependents of a man who dies in service who receive six months' pay at his rank

There are provisions for burial allowances and for interment in Arlington National cemetery.

Nearly two months ago, the veterans administration had received for hospitalization (presumably men who would not be fit to resume service after short periods in army or navy hospitals) 862 veterans of World war II. It is a safe guess that now the number is well over 1,000

The veterans administration was established in 1930, a consolidation of the old U S veterans bureau, the bureau of pensions, the national homes for disabled volunteer soldiers, and other agencies. Brig Gen Frank T. Hines, recognized as the ablest author ity on veterans affairs this country has produced, is its administrator. It has more than 100 field offices, hospitals and clinics

The size of the veterans administration task ahead may be guessed from this statement in the Congressional "Handbook for Service Personnel of World war II": "If the number of veterans of the present war should be approximately the same as for World war I and the benefits provided for them about the same as those granted other veterans under present legislation the total cost for all veterans and their dependents would be about $2,-000,000,000 a year."

MACHINERY for administering veterans' benefits already is running. For most of those benefits, the veterans of World war II automatically or by laws already passed become eligible This includes payments for service-connected disabilities, ranging from $10 to $100 a month It includes many kinds of medical treatment, hospitalization and domiciliary care.

Congress, in addition, went out of its way to try to pass a law that would make it obligatory for employers to give men drawn into the service their jobs and seniority back when the war is over. They even provided that veterans so denied their jobs may file complaints, without charge, with the U S district attorney in their district, to force employers to restore them

Liberal concessions are made to veterans to take civil service examinations for government employment

It is quite evident the veteran of World war II will have the jump on his dad in seeing that he isn't brushed aside when peace comes again.

GOES TO WAR WORK

Begun in 1924 but never occupied, the 22-story, $5 000 000 Hudson Towers in New York becomes the big city's first skyscraper to be demolished for salvage for the war effort. The Towers was purchased by the city at a tax sale two years ago.

throwing great numbers of tanks into the battle and one guard detachment was credited with destroying 24 of them in one assault.

The fighting in the city was a house-to-house scramble for advantageous positions with a liberal and deadly use of hand grenades, fire bombs and machine-guns.

600 Germans Killed

At one place, a Russian communique said, 600 Germans were killed as Red army troops drove the invaders out of buildings they had captured. It was a constant see-saw battle.

The dramatically reiterative word that Stalingrad still stands fitted like the needed part of a jig-saw puzzle into an allied strategy which appeared to be aimed at exacting as much time as possible for the preparation of action against the Germans on another front.

Each day gained, unless at the cost of Russian collapse, added to the assurance of success for the eventual stroke at Germany at the rear or aflank.

There were coinciding weekend statements by Wendell L. Willkie and General Sir Archibald P. Wavell, Britain's top-drawer strategist commanding British forces in India, which riveted new attention on the battle of Stalingrad

Russia, Wavell said, would stick it out and British and American troops will fight their way onto the European continent as soon as possible.

"It is quite certain that as soon as ever possible both American troops and ourselves will start a second front, but I can't tell you when or where," Wavell declared

Calls It Big Problem

"It's a biggish problem starting on the continent. We'll have some casualties—very considerable—both American and ours—before we get back into the continent. But we'll get back."

At the same time, Lord Strabolgi, Labor peer, demanded in a speech at Wimbledon that the Churchill war cabinet reply "without delay" to Willkie's assertion in Moscow that the best way to aid Russia was to open a second front before next summer.

Strabolgi said he did not see how the Labor party could continue to give "blind support" to the Churchill government unless military aid were given at once.

Emanuel Shinwell, Laborite member of the house of commons, said he had been greatly impressed by Willkie's outspoken statement and expressed the opinion that Britain and the United States should take the initiative immediately.

"We are told by members of the government that our armies are well-equipped, that our deplorable shipping losses are rapidly diminishing and that we have overwhelming superiority in the air," Shinwell said "If all that is true, what are we waiting for?"

Russian Predicts Action

Russian hopes of quick aid, meanwhile, were given a boost by George Alexandrov, chief of the Communist party's propaganda department in Moscow, who predicted the opening of a second front in the near future.

"The time is not far distant," he wrote in the party organ Pravda, "when our allies will introduce their armies against the common enemy. It will be an important and real factor for the victory."

Germany's outward reaction to all this second front talk was voiced by Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop who declared that the Germans would welcome an allied attempt to invade western Europe.

Von Ribbentrop spoke at a diplomatic reception in Berlin marking the second anniversary of the signing of the tri-partite pact which linked Germany, Italy and Spain in a military

China Looks Like Next Target of Japanese Attack

(This column each day is a daily feature by Hewitt Von Kent, a World war analyst is being written for a few days by Glen Babb)

Speculation on Japan's next move begins to eliminate some of the possibilities. The British obviously feel a growing confidence that India can be removed from the list and that Australia is not in immediate danger. General Sir Archibald Wavell, who ought to know something about Japanese conquest schedules by now, having directed the losing fight for Malaya and the Dutch East Indies last winter, puts it picturesquely

"As to the Japanese, he's got his hands full. He's like a boa constrictor which has swallowed a big goat. He needs time to digest it. Japan is not likely to take on a job like the invasion of Australia or India."

The most indigestible part of Japan's goat continues to be, as for five years past, China. Last spring, after the Japanese in a few weeks had seized the oriental possessions of the United States, Britain and The Netherlands, there was a worldwide guessing contest as to the territory Japan would try next to add to her expanding empire.

Distant Prizes Passed Up

Then, as in recent weeks, it generally was assumed that the Japanese would try for some distant, glittering prize—India, Australia or Siberia. Then, as recently, little attention was paid to the likelihood that the next major effort of the Japanese army would be against China. But so it turned out to be, for since the occupation of Burma the only large scale operations of the Mikado's land forces have been in China's east-central provinces of Chekiang and Kiangsi

Thanks to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's still ill-equipped infantry divisions and the dashing aid lent by the small United States air forces in China, these operations failed. The Japanese are just about back to the bases from which they started last May.

That has been the Japanese army's big show of the last six months. The Coral sea, Midway, the Aleutians and the Solomons were primarily naval operations. And the Japanese army cannot be expected to accept the Kiangsi-Chekiang defeat without an early effort to wipe out the stain. Its prestige at home as well as the empire's prestige in the Asiatic world—the "co-prosperity sphere"—calls for action

China Seems To Be Target

This might, of course, take the form of a smash at Russia's Siberia. But the logic of Japan's immediate situation points more strongly to a new China campaign.

The forays of General Stilwell's bombers and fighters against the Japanese who entered southwestern China from Burma last spring and also against Hanoi, in French Indo-China, through which troops and supplies flow in a steady stream, probably are not without significance. Japanese divisions which were withdrawn from the Chekiang-Kiangsi theater have been moved both Japanese and Chinese say, to another zone of operations, probably China's none too well defended southern and southwestern borders.

At any rate Japan's primary purpose in what she calls the greater East Asia war, to establish her rule over all the territory between the sea or Japan and the Indian ocean, is far from accomplishment as long as Chiang Kai-shek's Free China remains in being. That is the very core of the whole adventure in international brigandage; it all fails unless China is conquered.

JAPS LOSE HEAVILY TO CHINESE FORCE

300 Men Killed in One Column After Hard Battle.

By The Associated Press

CHUNKING, Sept 28—Chinese forces have inflicted considerable casualties upon Japanese forces striking west, southwest and southeast from Kinhwa, capital of coastal Chekiang province, the high command announced today

The enemy thrusts started last Thursday to the west and, after losing heavily, the Japanese brought up reinforcements, the war bulletin said Two columns were sent against the Chinese but the Japanese lost 300 men from one column in a four hour battle and the remainder fled

Subsequently the second enemy column moved to the southwest and the Chinese said their troops were engaging this force.

Fighting was reported in progress also with Japanese units which attacked toward Wupi, southeast of Kinhwa.

PRESIDENT WILLING TO DELAY ACTION

Congress To Be Given More Time on Price Bill.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28 — President Roosevelt was reported today to have agreed to delay any executive move to control the cost of living until congress completes action on pending anti-inflation legislation, even if the final draft does not reach him by his Oct. 1 deadline.

In his you-do-it-or-I-will message of Sept 7 the President told congress that present controls would not hold the cost of food and clothing down beyond Oct. 1, and requested action by that time.

But Senator Brown, Democrat of Michigan, told reporters he had been assured Mr Roosevelt contemplated no immediate action and would wait a reasonable length of time for congress to finish its work on a measure directing that prices wages and salaries be stabilized at Sept. 15 levels, so far as practical

With the farm bloc apparently on the run in the senate after winning an overwhelming victory in the house, the national Farmers Union asserted that "a change in the formula for determining parity price will not solve the production problem" and inclusion of wages in parity calculations "is negligible"

In telegrams sent to members of the senate, W. M Thatcher, legislative chairman for the organization, suggested that congress leave to the President "the matter of increasing prices or higher ceilings for certain commodities and other measures necessary for full production by and protection to agricultural producers"

Dog Leads Rescuers To Boy Lost in Woods

Home Ward Found After Long Search.

By The Associated Press

MECHANICSBURG, O., Sept 28—Thanks to an alert shepherd dog, Carl McKinnis, 7-year-old county ward, awoke snug in his own bed today after being lost in dense southern Ohio woods more than 24 hours

Carl left the Union county children's home, where he is a ward, Saturday afternoon to gather nuts. He wandered too deeply into the woods and became lost but with him was the dog "Brownie."

A search started Saturday night and continued yesterday. Volunteers, growing steadily in number, trudged through heavy undergrowth and timber in this southern Ohio area

Last night a rescuer traveling on horseback encountered a shepherd dog that came barking out of a wooded tract. Dismounting, the man followed the canine 50 feet—and found Carl flat on his face, exhausted, cold and hungry.

MOTORISTS ASKED TO REDUCE DRIVING

40 Per Cent Cut To Precede Rationing Nov. 22.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28—Motorists throughout the nation were asked today to reduce their driving to about 60 per cent of a normal pending installation of gas rationing some time after Nov. 22 as a fuel conservation measure

Price Administrator Leon Henderson pointed out the week-end had the national program would follow closely the system, already in effect in the east with a basic ration of slightly less than 5 gallons a week.

Supplemental rations will be available in certain cases but Henderson served notice that they would be issued only on proof of need and in quantities strictly limited to the degree of essentiality to the nation's war effort

The rationing program also will require motorists to submit their tires for a checkup every 60 days to insure that proper care is taken of them and to comply with a 35-mile an hour speed limit decreed by the office of defense transportation. Details as to how these requirements will be tied in with the rationing have not yet been announced.

HEARINGS RESUMED ON LABOR SITUATION

Hershey, McNutt and Nelson Called To Testify.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept 28—With one eye on the nation's south and the other on its Saturday basket, the house appropriations committee today sought the advice of three top-ranking officials to aid it in framing legislation to curb what Chairman Fulmer (D-SC) described as "rapidly approaching food shortage."

Called as first witnesses on the committee's long study of the food outlook were Maj. Gen. Lewis B Hershey selective service director, Paul V McNutt head of the war manpower commission, and Donald M Nelson, war production chief.

Hershey was scheduled to take the stand today after testifying before a senate subcommittee studying manpower. McNutt was slated as Tuesday's witness, and Nelson was expected to appear Wednesday

From Hershey, who last week told the committee 23 per cent of draft registrants up to last June were from farm regions but only 15 per cent of men in the army were farmers Fulmer said he was hoped to get an idea of the future manpower needs of the armed services and their effect on the farm labor supply

McNutt, whom Fulmer accused of being "more interested in industry's needs regardless of the effect on food production," was expected to be asked about how many more men, if any, industry would take from the farms and whether the manpower commission has any plans for supplying workers to agricultural areas.

CARDS TRIM CUBS TWICE TO CLINCH NATIONAL LEAGUE FLAG

Face Yankees in Opening World Series Game Wednesday

By The Associated Press

THE SHOUTING and the tumult died for baseball's 1942 season, and the chip started flying here today to fight about whether the St. Louis Cardinals are a tired ball club after their skyrocket ride into the National, or for pennant, or whether they'll still be hot against the Yankees in the world series.

The war's first campaign wound up yesterday, with considerable confusion over what baseball can look forward to for the rest of the war, and with the Cards winners of both ends of a double-header from the Chicago Cubs to knock the Brooklyn Bums off the National league throne.

It was this surge of St. Louis that had the fans bouncing around in their chairs as the race went right down to the wire with the Cards finally getting the nod by two games. Yesterday's twin win marked the 43rd victory for the Cards in their last 52 games to come from far back and take the flag. And until the Red Birds stack up against the Yanks, no one can be quite sure whether that drive took too much out of them to keep up the pace.

Yanks Lose 7-5

On the other hand, the Yanks were just walking along since they sewed up their sixth American league championship in seven years on Sept. 11. In their finale yesterday they were nosed out by the Red Sox 7-6 to finish with a nine-game lead over the Bostons. In this taffy-pull, Tex Hughson treated himself to his 22nd victory of the year.

The Yanks go into the series Wednesday as 5 to 9 favorites in the betting, in spite of such St. Louis elbowing as may be offered by Mort Cooper and his sidekicks, among them Ernie White and Johnny Beazley, who turned the trick over the Cubs yesterday. It was in the first game, with White serving up a five - hitter, that the Cards clinched the flag by winning 0-2. Beazley took his 21st triumph of the year in the afterpiece, in which the Cards clicked by 4-1.

Incidentally, one note of pessimism for speed-baller Cooper in the series is that no fast-ball flinger has beaten the Yanks in a single game of the six series in their current run as baseball's top outfit.

Dodgers Win 4-3

The Dodgers ended their year yesterday with a 4-3 win over the Phillies to run their closing streak to eight straight to finish second.

The two-third place clubs, the New York Giants and St. Louis Browns wound up the season by taking a day off.

The only change in the standings on the final day saw the Pittsburgh Pirates pummel the Cincinnati Reds twice, 8-7 in 12 innings and 7 to 4 in the regulation nine, to climb over the Cubs into fifth place in the National league. The Reds finished fourth.

Cleveland clinched the rear end of the American league's first division by whitewashing Detroit 8-0 behind Jim Bagby's six-hit hurling. There was no other action on the big league front.

Ted Williams, with .356, and Ernie Lombardi, with .331 brought the two batting championships to Boston. And that, except for the final figures on the number of hot dogs consumed, the number of bottles of pop sent along to wash down the dogs, and the number of broken hearts in Brooklyn, just about pulls down the shade for the season.

RED BIRDS TO PLAY SYRACUSE TONIGHT

Columbus Team Leads in Little World Series.

By The Associated Press

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 28—Syracuse Manager Jewel Ens is coming back at Columbus tonight with Clayt Lambert, big right-hander who handcuffed the Red Birds with five hits in last Thursday's opener of the little world series as his pitching choice.

Skipper Eddie Dyer's American association club holds a 2-1 edge in the 25th annual minor league classic, by virtue of Saturday night's 4-3 win over the International league Chiefs.

Yesterday's scheduled afternoon contest was postponed.

Dyer nominated Elwin (Preacher) Roe to take the mound. Roe, a lefthander, won only six while losing 11 for the Birds, but is a late-season hurler, picking up steam when the nights are cool. Lambert, six-foot two-inch fireballer, won seven and lost three during the regular season, and has copped three playoff games. He will be seeking his ninth straight win.

SINK THE JAPS WITH YOUR OLD JUNK

HERE'S HOW TO DO IT: Clean the junk out of your cellar—your attic—your garage.

Do it today. Because there is stuff there that will help win the war—stuff that America needs to make bullets and bombs and tanks and planes and ships.

Don't think "My little bit won't help." It will. Munition plants urgently need scrap metal of all kinds. Scrap rubber every single ounce of it, is needed to make tank treads, tires for trucks and guns, lifeboat rafts and pontoons. Old rags are needed as wiping rags for ships and machines. Manila rope and Burlap Bags are needed for shipping and ships.

Sell your scrap to a Junk Dealer. Or give it to a local Charity. If in doubt, consult your local Salvage Committee. If you live on a farm, ask your County Agent. Get busy today.

AMERICA NEEDS YOUR JUNK!

OHIO STATE - INDIANA CONTEST HIGHLIGHTS 20 - GAME SCHEDULE

Hoosiers Triumph, 53-0, Over Highly-Rated Butler Team.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 28—Ohio State's young gaggle of footballers get their acid test next Saturday as they meet Coach Bo McMillin's "pore little boys" from Indiana in the feature attraction of a 20-game week-end program involving Buckeye squads.

While the battling Bucks were running over Fort Knox by 59 to 0 last Saturday, the Hoosiers were defeating Butler of Indianapolis—touted as a pretty fair grid team—53 to 0. Billy Hillenbrand, tagged as the "back of the year," scored only one touchdown, but the Hoosier hotshot is the No. 1 man on the Bucks' "watch him" list.

Paul E. Brown isn't sure whether the Bucks are a great team, or whether they just ran into a decidedly weak foe in the Fort Knox crew. The same reasoning holds good for the Indiana conquest of Butler.

In 20 previous encounters the Hoosiers have been able to beat the Bucks only three times, the Ohioans having outscored the Indiana crew 211 to 76 for the long route.

"Those games," Brown said, "are gone. Past records don't mean a thing. All those points won't help us a bit Saturday, and this looks like a tough—maybe too tough—ball game."

Other games on the week-end schedule are:

Friday afternoon — Muskingum at Otterbein, and Defiance at Capital.

Friday night—Denison at Mount Union, and Youngstown at St. Vincent's (Latrobe, Pa.)

Saturday afternoon — Iowa Cadets (B team) at Case, Findlay at Kent State, Wooster at Wittenberg, Akron at Ohio U., Ohio Northern at Albion, Mich.; Cincinnati at Western Reserve, Illinois Wesleyan at Toledo, Bluffton at Kenyon, Bowling Green at Ohio Wesleyan, Hiram at Grove City, Pa.; Heidelberg at Dayton, Miami at Dartmouth, and Wright-Patterson Field vs. Miami Radio trainees at Hamilton.

Saturday night—John Carroll at Baldwin-Wallace.

Sunday afternoon—Fort Knox at Xavier.

Four of the games bring together undefeated teams, assuring a few more sullied records. The battles between unbeaten squads involve Reserve and Cincinnati, Bowling Green and Wesleyan, Baldwin and John Carroll, and Otterbein and Muskingum. Five squads—Wittenberg, Ohio U., Kenyon, Defiance and Capital, launch their campaigns with this week's frays.

SNATCHES OF SPORTS

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
Wide World Sports Columnist

NEW YORK, Sept. 28—That National league race was a thriller, all right, but we wonder if the Cards will be able to get themselves steamed up for the world series by Wednesday... The Yankees, who ought to know, insist there's an inevitable letdown when the pennant is clinched, whether it happens on the last day or a month before the season ends... One minor league official hit it right on the head when he was waiting to learn whether his club would be going into the playoffs or just going home. He said: "We sit around at the winter meetings and talk about what a swell thing it would be to have an eight club race right up to the last minute. But we don't mean it."... Anyway, there's some consolation for Brooklyn fans. The football Dodgers are winning.

• • •

Precious Pigskin—The Columbia-Fort Monmouth game last Saturday drew only about 6,000 customers, but when the game football was "auctioned" off between the halves a total of 8,175 in war bond purchases was pledged by the bidders... The winner of the autographed ball was Mrs. Betty Cohen, who "bid" a $3,000 bond.

• • •

Monday Matinee — If Leo Durocher leaves the Dodgers for the navy, the guys in line for the Brooklyn manager's job are Chuck Dressen, Bucky Harris and Billy Herman...The fight mob is giving a farewell party for Jimmy Braddock and Joe Gould Wednesday night, giving them time to recover before they enter the army Friday.

• • •

Today's Guest Star—Jim Schlemmer, Akron Beacon Journal: "Last year fans were calling them 'the pennant-winning Dodgers.' This year they are calling them, among other things, the 'pennant Dodgers.' Few teams ever have done a better job of dodging a pennant which was practically nailed to the flagpole."

Pesky Paradise—When Vince Pesky got back home to Portland, Ore., after spending a couple of weeks with brother Johnny of the Red Sox, he reported that his biggest thrill came on "kids day" at Fenway park when Johnny hit three for five... When they started to leave the park, the gateman warned Johnny he'd be mobbed if he left by the main entrance, but Vince interposed: "John, this is something I've waited all these years to see you have to do—sign autographs." ... So Johnny braved the crowd and signed for an hour and a half...

• • •

Today's Guest Star—Al Hirshberg, Boston Post: "Here's the greatest double play combination of the season: the fans at Little Rock gave a purse of $1,000 to Manager Willis Hudlin in appreciation of the fine job he did there... Hudlin promptly turned the money over to the players... And the players, in turn, donated it to the army and navy relief societies."

• • •

Free Ad—Niagara Falls, N. Y., is urgently in need of an opponent (either college of service) for Joe Bach's Fort Knox, Ky., football team on either Oct. 24 or 25. The game will be played for the Fort Niagara army relief fund... Today's Ohio State game will give you a line on the Fort Knox team. Then if you know a good team with an open date send word to Mayor Eugene C. Butler.

TRIBE ENDS YEAR IN FOURTH PLACE

Boudreau Leads Indians Into First Division.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 28 — With some mighty oar-pulling at the finish, youthful pilot Lou Boudreau—ending his first voyage on the managerial seas—brought his Cleveland Indians into the port he set out for eight months ago, the American league's first division.

The Indians yesterday closed the 1942 season with an 8 to 0 shutout over the Detroit Tigers to win sole possession of fourth place.

Jim Bagby, turning in his 17th victory, pitched a six-hit game and put the Tribe two games ahead of the Tigers. Had he lost the Indians would have tied for fourth place with the Bengals.

The triumph gave Cleveland a record of 75 victories and 79 defeats, the same as last year when it tied with Detroit for fourth place.

Scoring all of their points in a brilliant second quarter display of power, a veteran Tiffin Calvert team won 20-0 over an inexperienced Marion St. Mary football eleven at Harding stadium Saturday night. The game was played in a downpour of rain.

The third touchdown was scored by Spino on a short plunge in the second stanza.

St. Mary will entertain Coshocton, winner and a loser in the first two games Saturday night at the stadium. Crestline defeated easily over Mt. Gilead 34-0. The Golfiter and lost Friday night to an improved Galion team 13-12.

Indian Jack Jacobs Is Star of Ram's 12-0 Win

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, Sept. 28—The old Indian sign was all the Cleveland Rams needed to break the five-year jinx.

Jack Jacobs, of the Oklahoma Creek tribe, put the sign on—but good—with two touchdown passes that whipped the Detroit Lions 14 to 0 in a National league football game played before 14,946 spectators here yesterday. It was Cleveland's first victory at Detroit since joining the league in 1937.

It was the second straight victory for the Rams.

Saving Spare Parts

He said he thought one big task for boys and girls who are helping with the drive in the country area is to help the farmers take off the bolts, pins, cotter keys, bearings and other "spare parts" replacements from farm machinery that's given to the scrap heap.

These spare parts, he pointed out, are almost indispensable on a farm and will be even more so with tire rationing in effect, gasoline rationing on the way, and the great probability that manufacture of some items may stop altogether before the war is over.

The reason there is so much scrap material to be found on farms is due, he believes, to the farmers changing over from horse-drawn to power machinery. Farmers let the old machinery set around for the value of its spare parts. Dealers in scrap don't want the farmers to give away these spare parts — they want him to keep important "spares" but they do have to have the bulk machine.

SUPT. HOLT SPEAKS AT EPWORTH CHURCH

Discusses Need of Adequate Religious Education.

Religious training is of vital importance as part of the total educational process in the life of every individual, Supt F. E. Holt of the Marion public schools told an audience at a service at Epworth Methodist church last night. His subject was "Evangelism and Education."

He stressed the point that the giving of adequate religious education to young persons is a big task, that it must be an every-day process, not just a one-day-a-week affair. There must be more emphasis on the spiritual growth of individuals or the nation will have a group of citizens who are "not in balance," he said.

A quartet of young people Sanford Lane, Marjorie Schoonover, Ruth Ann Rea and Irvin Porter furnished special music. After the service young people of the church held a fellowship hour at Our House at which Superintendent and Mrs Holt were guests.

The service was the second in a series of Sunday night meetings in which laymen speak on phases of evangelism leading up to the evangelistic campaign which the church plans for Oct. 15-Nov. 1.

4 DIE IN ACCIDENTS

MASSILLON, O., Sept 28—Two separate accidents killed four persons here yesterday. Three Canton youths—Rita Mae Anderson, 16; James H Kuepfer, 19, and James E. Johnston, 16—died as their automobile and a Pennsylvania freight train collided at a crossing. The fourth victim was Clarence Byrnes, 45, of Alliance, whose body was found beside the Pennsylvania tracks.

ACCUSE GRILL OPERATOR OF ILLEGAL LIQUOR SALE

Charged With Selling Outside Time Set by Ordinance.

Louis Paulson, proprietor of the Paulson's Grill at 255 West Center street, was arrested by city police Saturday night on a charge of selling and permitting consumption of beer and intoxicating liquors between the hours of midnight and 6 a. m. He probably will be arraigned Wednesday in municipal court, police indicated.

Paulson is charged with violating a city ordinance recently passed prohibiting the sale or consumption of liquors in a public establishment after midnight and before 6 a. m. the following day.

A plain clothesman of the police department made a buy at the grill at about 12:05 a. m. Sunday, Chief Marks said. In the grill at the time of the purchase, police said, were several persons drinking beer and liquors.

The new ordinance prohibits sale of either beer or liquor on week-ends from midnight Saturday to 6 a. m. Monday.

The Associated Press reported that executives from Ohio, Kentucky, West Virginia, and parts of Tennessee and Virginia are attending the meeting. Five speakers were to lead discussions today on phases of "Specific War-time Problems and How We Have Met Them."

The meeting which opened Friday will continue through Tuesday.

Urgent Duties in Capital Keep Congressmen on Job

Campaigns for Reelection Hampered by Inability of Representatives To Stay in Districts.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept 28—Ohio members of the house are conducting a new kind of campaign for reelection.

Obliged to spend much of their time in the capital to help consider urgent war problems, the 21 representatives up for reelection in November are presenting their case to electors by mail, through friends and by making occasional hurried trips home.

They recall wistfully the days of peace when incumbent congressmen could forget matters of state weeks before an election and go home to stay until the returns were in. But all, Republicans and Democrats alike, are optimistic.

They suggest that opponents regularly on the ground have little, if any, advantage if the voters want incumbents to remain on the job to handle emergency legislation.

The two representatives-at-large, George H. Bender (R) and Stephen M Young (D), are conducting similar campaigns. They visit the state as often as possible but neither intends to make many personal appearances. The 1940 census eliminated one of Ohio's two "at-large" seats and Bender and Young were renominated in the August primary to oppose each other in the Nov. 3 election.

The state is certain to have at least three new representatives next year. Representatives Robert T Secrest (D) of the 15th District and A. D. Baumhart Jr. (R) of the 13th resigned to take navy commissions. Representative Martin L Sweeney (D) of the 20th was defeated for renomination in the primary. Mrs Sweeney is running as an independent.

Bender Forecasts Victory

Reflecting views of the Republican leadership, Bender forecasts that his party will gain a number of seats, "several in Ohio." He declared that letters received in his office indicated "a definite trend" against continued Democratic control of congress.

Young has carried on an energetic campaign through statements and supporters in the state. He contends his chances for reelection were enhanced by his support of war measures. Bender also is backing the war program and recalls that he was among the first Republicans to advocate unity before Pearl Harbor. Previously he had disagreed with the administration on some policies affecting foreign relations.

Neither Senator Harold H. Burton of Cleveland nor Senator Robert A. Taft of Cincinnati, both Republican, is up for reelection. Pressing business in the senate has prevented them from participating actively in the state campaign.

The resignations of Baumhart and Secrest left Ohio with 22 representatives in the 77th congress — 11 Republicans and 11 Democrats. Some members expressed doubt the political lineup would change, suggesting that the vote would be light and that electors would be satisfied to retain the "war congress" intact.

"I am willing to submit my record and let the voters decide," commented Representative J. Harry McGregor of the 17th district, echoing the opinions of other district Republicans.

"We'll take care of them (the Democrats)," said Representative Thomas A. Jenkins of the 10th district, dean of Ohio Republicans in the house.

Confident of Returning

Like all the incumbents, Jenkins and McGregor usually buy roundtrip tickets when they get a chance to go home.

Representative Harold K. Claypool (D) of the 11th agreed with other members of his party that the Democrats were in no danger despite their inability to make numerous speeches. Claypool said he would manage to make several trips to his district before the election but planned only one or two rallies.

The other Democratic incumbents are Greg Holbrook of the third, Jacob E. Davis of the sixth, John F. Hunter of the ninth, Dow W Harter of the 14th, William R. Thom of the 16th, Lawrence E Imhoff of the 18th, Michael J. Kirwan of the 19th, and Robert Crosser of the 21st.

The state's first woman member of congress, Mrs. Frances P. Bolton (R) who succeeded her late husband in the 22nd district, is confident of reelection and is spending most of her time in the capital.

These Republican incumbents repeated Bender's prediction that the party would gain seats: Charles H. Elston of the first, William E. Hess of the second, Robert E. Jones of the fourth, Cliff Clevenger of the fifth, Clarence J Brown of the seventh, Frederick C. Smith of the eighth and John M. Vorys of the 12th.

Foots The Bill

"Whenever you need extra funds, step in . . . we're at your service."

Our loan number 738487 is a factory policeman. He formerly held a job that paid very little money. Consequently, his bills and debts had piled up and when he secured his present position, his creditors all wanted their money at once. His job was jeopardized. He came to us, quite upset, to see if he could arrange a loan. With complete understanding of his situation, we quickly made him a loan of $160 to pay off sixteen different obligations. You can well imagine his relief. He now has one place to pay and he is definitely on his way up again.

OLD AGE PENSIONS DISCUSSED AT RALLY

State, District Candidates Represented at Dinner.

Approximately 400 persons, including the Old Age Pensioners' society of Marion county and guests attended a rally and dinner Saturday in the Eagles' Memorial auditorium. Speakers included O. P. Van Sickle of Columbus, representative of John McSweeney, Democratic candidate for governor, Rocky Hoffman, candidate for congress in this district; Wade Ambrose, and A. B. Franklin of the Eagles' lodge.

Rev. W. F. Padgett offered thanks for the dinner. The program opened with a song "America," prayer by Lewis Ruhlman and the salute to the flag. Rev. Nola West and her mother sang.

Mr. Ambrose of the Eagles told the audience the organization was 100 per cent for the old age pensioners and told of the welfare work done by the Eagles. He talked on the old age pension, pointing out that 80 per cent of persons receive pensions of $10 to $12 per week for two or three months and those receiving $40 a month will not receive anything. Mr. Franklin of the Eagles said it was the Eagles lodge that was responsible for the Old Age pension and urged the persons present to "vote when you mark your ballot, vote for the one that will help you."

The division of aid for the aged should be taken out of the hands of a few and put in the hands of the government, Mr. Van Schenk said in speaking for the Democratic candidate for governor.

In speaking to the pensioners Mr. Fletcher said he wondered if the pension system wouldn't be better off if run by the federal government. He said there soon would be 17 million pensioners and at the close of the war "we will have millions of soldiers come back home, and these we will have to take care of."

Rev. Nola West and her mother sang. Mrs. Louise Hornbeck and W. E. Sergent sang a duet and there was music by the male trio and the ladies' quartet. The benediction was spoken by William F. Potter.

HERSHEY TESTIFIES ON FARM LABOR

Considers Order Freezing Workers on Jobs.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28 — A freezing of essential workers to the farm, by giving them the choice between agricultural production or military service, was suggested today by Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, selective service chief, as one possible means of alleviating a growing farm labor shortage.

He told the house agriculture committee "I am willing to do this," if the proper policy-making agency of the government decided it was advisable.

Earlier he had told the committee his was an operating office, that the war manpower commission took care of the policy making.

Hershey disclosed that he was considering the possibility of classifying agriculture production into its essential and non-essential components, either by crops or production areas. He said he had discussed this with Agriculture Secretary Wickard.

Before his testimony to the house group, General Hershey had discussed manpower needs with a special senate defense investigating committee preparing to investigate the situation.

Chairman Kilgore (D-W. Va.) said the committee hoped to begin hearing heads of various governmental agencies Wednesday.

WASHINGTON NEWS DEPRESSES WHEAT

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 28—Selling inspired by Washington reports about the status of price control legislation lowered wheat prices more than a cent a bushel and rye 2 cents today. Other grains also declined.

Brokers attributed most of the selling to a report that government loan rates on wheat and corn might not be raised from present levels under pending legislation. Indications that no change is to be made in computing farm parity for the purpose of price control also induced selling. They said recent buying had been based partly on belief that loan rates and parity calculations might be changed.

There Will Be No Shortage of Shoes in U. S. Through 1943, Expert Says

WASHINGTON—(Wide World) If you've been worried about the supply of shoes, you can relax, the department of commerce says.

Sufficient leather and shoes are on hand or in prospect to meet all essential requirements through 1943, in spite of growing demands of the armed forces and lease-lend, J. G. Schnitzer, the department's leather specialist, declares.

And because of ample stocks, he adds, it appears that civilians are in good position to meet a probable decline in available shoe supplies in 1943 and thereafter.

The ladies won't be able to get as many fancy styles and two-tone jobs are out for the duration, but no restrictions have been placed on the total number of shoes to be manufactured.

The emphasis in leather conservation is on "needs," as differing from "wants."

Fewer Styles Offered

The fewer styles and colors offered, government officials reason, the less leather tied up on dealers' and customers' shelves.

The war production board has limited shoe colors to black, white, turf tan, army russet, town brown and blue, and "frost" shoe designs and construction as of Sept. 10, except in moves to comply with its order.

But if a manufacturer can make shoes without leather or composition rubber soles—with wood, for instance—that's O. K. with the WPB.

Specialist Schnitzer's latest analysis, appearing in the commerce department's September survey of current business, philosophizes thus:

"People wear shoes for two purposes—to protect the feet and for decoration. It would be hard to tell whether the utilitarian motive or the decorative motive is the more important factor in prompting shoe purchases. . . . [illegible] reasonably assured of adequate supplies [illegible] considerable stocks [illegible] wear left in them for something newer and more stylish."

So worn shoes—those still in use—come under official consideration in figuring the supply situation.

"With proper care, including repairs when needed, footwear now in service would probably be ample to fill the country's entire requirements for a 10-month period, if equitably distributed," Schnitzer estimated recently.

U. S. Consumption Highest

American shoe consumption is the highest in the world. Consumer purchases of all shoes in 1941 totaled 440 million pairs—a new record of 3.43 pairs per capita. (For women, the average was 3.71 pairs.)

Schnitzer recalls the feverish wave of buying by retailers last fall and says conservative estimates place the number of pairs in retailers' hands on July 1 at 207.5 million. As nearly as could be estimated, he adds, unused shoes in the closets of thousands of consumers exceeded 50 million pairs on that date.

This combined total of more than 300 million pairs is more than a six-month production during the record year of 1941.

Furthermore, shoe production continued at record levels during the first half of the year, the commerce department's figures show. And as to the manpower angle some shoe plants have been replacing men workers with women.

With many heavy consumers of footwear now in the armed forces, actual civilian needs [illegible] much smaller for the duration, Schnitzer contends.

Proponents of price [illegible] as a factor [illegible] production [illegible]

MARKET STICKS TO RECOVERY

List Generally On Up Grade Although Some Low-Priced Shares Lag.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 28—Stocks generally resumed the recovery jaunt in today's market without picking up any particular speed.

Fractional advances predominated. Low-priced issues, most of which were unchanged to off a shade, were relatively lively but turnover elsewhere was small.

Inflationary trends persisted as a buying argument, brokers said, notwithstanding the expected compromise of the wage-price dispute in congress. News from Stalingrad was not especially bullish but a certain amount of war optimism still was helpful marketwise.

Stocks attracting support included Santa Fe, which touched a 3-year peak; Norfolk & Western, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, American Telephone, Douglas Aircraft, Canadian Pacific, Anaconda, Dow Chemical and Allied Chemical. Slipping inclinations were shown by Chrysler, Consolidated Edison and N. Y. Central.

Educational films in technicolor showing the making of the Declaration of Independence were presented at the regular assembly at Thomas A. Edison Junior High school Friday morning. Miss Trella Klopfenstein, sophomore advisor, introduced girls of the sophomore class who are trying out for cheerleaders to lead cheers with Harding High school pupils at the games. Those leading cheers were Delores Kannell, Mary McCaulley, Mary Murphy, Joyce Buckingham and Donna Ruth Keener. Betty Bond is the only Junior class tryout. The girls took part in the cheerleading at the Harding stadium Friday night. Miss Demeril Hafer, music supervisor, led the group in singing the Harding song, with Louise Coldwell at the piano. Betty Bond, president of the Senior Girl Reserves was in charge of devotions. Earlier in the week a demonstration of the proper method of typing was given before the assembly by a representative of a typewriter company.

Tuesday Program Includes U. S. Signal Corps Films.

Members of the Marion Rifles, the Women's Ambulance corps and other persons who might be interested, are invited to attend open house to be held by Co. H, Ohio State guard, Tuesday night at the Armory. The meeting will be the regular weekly drill of Co. H, and will open at 7 with routine roll call and a formal inspection, followed by special calisthenics at 7:15. At 7:30 there will be close order drill followed by mess at 7:45 when a lunch will be served, Captain Carl Ebert announced today.

At 8 three training films furnished by the signal corps of the U. S. Army will provide educational entertainment. Two will be on close order drill of the squadron and the platoon and one will be on personal hygiene. All are training films featuring basic training and are being sent here direct from the Fifth Service Command at Columbus.

Aviator's Health

MORE AND [illegible] be the de[illegible] Pe[illegible] are beg[illegible] stem [illegible] pr[illegible] of [illegible] ve[illegible] we [illegible] ce[illegible]

It is [illegible] presented that at least fifty per cent of the [illegible] which go to make [illegible] efficient are [illegible] problem. The aviator has [illegible] than one human body, [illegible] superior it may be to the [illegible] body of his fellow [illegible] body must in the [illegible] time, during flight endure [illegible] of altitude for which the hardiest mountaineer of a generation ago would [illegible] of acclimatization.

The oxygen [illegible] of the blood is the important factor in changing altitudes, and the oxygen saturation of the blood is affected by carbon monoxide, and airfields are filled with carbon monoxide gas till the time. Right away the medical officer runs into the picture.

The aviator on duty must be continually working out mathematical problems of distance and targets, and the nature, success of his operations depends upon the extreme accuracy of these calculations. Accuracy certainly is affected by fatigue. If there is continuous vibration of the navigator's table the instrument panel, the gun mountings, it will result in visual and general fatigue. Again, right away the medical officer is called in, at least medical experiments are required, in the actual construction of an airplane.

The medical problems which center about gun turrets have not even yet been successfully solved in a complete way. How large should a gun turret be? The gun turret is useless unless an average young adult man can efficiently use the guns in the turret. He must wear adequate clothing and have oxygen and intercommunication equipment, and he must have an even chance of getting out of the turret in a hurry in case of abandonment of aircraft is necessary.

One of the most intricate problems which the aviation physician has had to solve is that of the aviator's clothing. The heat regulation of the body can compensate under ordinary circumstances for changes in environmental temperatures. But when you postulate changes in temperature and altitude made in a few minutes, the normal adjustments of the body entirely fail unless artificially helped.

And consider that in tropical climates the temperature inside an airplane which has been sitting on the ground may be 120 degrees F. to 140 degrees F., and that the aviator must enter that temperature in clothes that in a few minutes will protect him from the extreme cold of high altitudes, and you will see you have a problem that was never dreamt of in the philosophy of the humdrum, stay-at-home classical hygienist of the days of peace.

Aviation medicine requires under any conditions very special training. Twenty thousand physicians alone, it is estimated, will be needed for the American Air Corps.

Hysterical Child

I [illegible] she probably will tell you that she is being terribly [illegible] out the worst that can be happening to her is a strong arm holding her in a chair and a hand across her mouth—treatment I sometimes necessary to use with an hysterical child. And that is just what is after all, Ronald.

"But I want you to tell her kindly but firmly that you cannot help her, and that she must go [illegible] with her father and [illegible]."

Madge Tells Plan

"You don't want me to see her?" he asked, as if he would welcome a negative answer.

"No there is no need of that," I told him, "but will you talk to her through the door?"

"Of course I will," he said.

"I will go in now and shut the door," I went on, "then tell Carolyn you wish to speak to her through the door. Stand to one side so she cannot see you."

"All right," he whispered, and I opened the door.

The nurse was sitting erect at the foot of the bed on which Carolyn was lying, still rolled in the blanket with which Miss Whitlock had stopped her screaming.

Carolyn Rebellious

"May I speak to her?" I asked the nurse. "I have a message for her."

She nodded acquiescence, but Carolyn said pettishly, "I won't listen," and put her fingers in her ears, but with swift agility Miss Whitlock took the twisting hands firmly in her own.

"I told you to behave yourself," she said, with steel in her low voice, "If I release your hands will you listen quietly?"
